24. Selection of a Consumer Advocate and training of Peer Advocates; and
25. Review of all consumer forms and responsibilities;

B. Upon completion of the employee's orientation. It is the HR Dept's responsibility to ensure that new employee orientation is checked off as "complete" on the New Employee Orientation Form and the Form is placed in the employee's personnel file.

C. Employee performance appraisals will be given after completion of the employee's 90 probationary period. If the employee's performance has been poor, the supervisor will review the Employee Disciplinary Report accompanying the performance appraisal. The Employee Disciplinary Report will document the steps to be taken if performance does not improve.

At the end of the session, the supervisor and employee will review the objectives and goals that have been established for the upcoming evaluation period.

The supervisor informs the employee of the specific date of follow up action.

The employee reviews the written appraisal and is afforded the opportunity to document his/her comments in writing;

The employee is asked to sign the performance appraisal form. Signature does not necessarily imply agreement with the contents, but indicates that the employee has had the opportunity to review the appraisal;

The employee may request a copy of the appraisal for his/her records.

The supervisor shall sign the completed appraisal form and begin action with the employee to accomplish the developmental goals relative to the employee's potential growth or to remedy performance deficits.

The supervisor forwards the completed self-appraisal and performance appraisal to the manager. The manager forwards the documentation to the HRD for inclusion in the employee's personnel file.

An employee who substantially disagrees with the performance appraisal may request a review of the performance appraisal by the manager or the Chief Executive Officer.

Information derived from the performance appraisal may be considered when making a decision affecting the employee, including but not limited to, training needs and opportunities, pay, promotion, transfer, or continued employment.

Between scheduled appraisals, supervisors should discuss any performance issues with employees that warrant attention and should keep written documentation of any significant incidents.
